SEEK PEACE WITH DISGRUNTLED FARM BLOC

HOPE TO GET AGREEMENT ON TARIFF BILL

ADMINISTRATION FORCES HOLDING CONFERENCES WITH FARM SUPPORTERS

BLOC WANTS DUTY ON HIDES, STARCHES AND LONG STAPLE COTTON

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 14.—While the senate was nearing the long delayed vote on the farm bill, administration forces in the house called the disgruntled farm bloc into a peace conference today to arrange an agreement on the tariff bill.

Bloc members led by Rep. Dickinson of Iowa were asked to appear in an executive session of the house ways and means committee, authors of the bill, to lay down their grievances in order that amendments might be prepared to make the measure more acceptable to the western congressmen.

The bloc wants a duty on hides, starches and long staple cotton and increased levies on flaxseed, butter and milk products. They have received private assurances they will get some of the things, if not all they want.

If they get enough, they will vote for the administration tariff bill, giving it the 50 votes necessary to put it through the house. If they do not get enough, they will join with the democrats to wreck the bill, they say.

The conferences are expected to extend over several days. Meantime general debate on the bill will be permitted to run footloose on the floor, because the leaders cannot make any arrangements for passing the bill until the farm bloc is brought into line.

The four days of debate thus far have shown the bad situation surrounding the bill is getting somewhat worse. Aside from their primary interest in the farm schedules, many farm bloc members are protesting vigorously the 3 cents a pound sugar rate.

Members interested in surgery are forming to protest the high rates on surgical instruments. Even the republican delegation from Maine is aroused because of the failure to increase the duty on potatoes.

Leaders have become convinced they cannot please everyone. They will be satisfied if they can get enough farm bloc votes to pass the bill. They have even heard reports President Hoover is not favorably disposed toward the measure because of its extensive scope.

The president has said nothing and will say nothing but his legislative representative, Walter Newton of Minnesota, has been active in congressional circles.

While the house wrestled with these problems, the senate went to work under a ten-minute debate limitation rule, hoping to reach final vote on the farm bill. It already has been delayed three days.

The latest checks indicated there will not be more than 35 votes against the bill, most of these being cast by administration supporters against the debenture clause to which Mr. Hoover has objected.

By JOSEPH S. WASNEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 14.—While farm bloc leaders were demanding greater agricultural tariff protection before the house ways and means committee today, President Hoover took matters into his own hands by ordering sharp increases on several farm products under the authority of the flexible tariff law.

President Hoover, acting upon recommendation of the United States tariff commission, ordered the following tariff increases into effect:

Flaxseed—40 cents to 56 cents a pound.
Milk—2½ to 3 3-4 cents a gallon.
Cream—20 to 30 cents a gallon.

Window glass—sliding increases ranging from five-eighths of a cent to one and one-half cents above existing rates.

The president pointed out in his announcement that the new rate on cream will be lower than the rate proposed in the new tariff bill now before the house, but explained that under the 1922 tariff act changes under the flexible tariff provision are limited to 50 per cent of existing rates.

His conferences with leaders of the house and senate had convinced him, the chief executive said, that the farmers should have the benefit of the increased tariff at once.

In announcing the new schedules, the president refrained, however,

The aldermanic section of the primary election drew much of the attention away from the mayoralty candidates, four aldermen having recently been convicted and sentenced to prison for bribery in connection with their official duties.

Practically complete returns today showed Alderman W. Harry Rendell, eighth ward, as the only member of the city council in danger of losing his post, the other present members being elected.

Minneapolis, May 14.—Complete unofficial tabulations in Monday's city election revealed today that William F. Kunze had polled some 31,000 votes in the mayoralty race compared to 26,000 for Col. George E. Leach, incumbent, or a majority of 5,000.

HINDENBERG TO RETIRE FROM PUBLIC LIFE

WILL LEAVE TURMOIL OF POLITICS WHEN TERM OF PRESIDENCY EXPIRES, 1932

PLANS TO SPEND REMAINDER OF HIS DAYS ON HIS COUNTRY ESTATE

Berlin, May 14.—(U.P.)—President Paul Von Hindenberg, Germany's soldier-statesman, will retire from public life at the expiration of his present term of office in 1932 and spend the remainder of his days on his country estate, it was learned today.

Called out of retirement in 1914 to command Germany's armies in the eastern front ultimately on all fronts, recalled again after the war to take the presidency of the republic and thus, for the time being, settle internal political strife, Hindenberg, now 81, feels that he would like to spend the remainder of his life in tranquility.

The United Press today is in a position to state authoritatively that the president already has communicated his intention to retire to his friends and political advisers. He has confided that under no condition would he accept a second term of the presidency.

"As soon as I am relieved of the burden of office," he told friends, "I shall retire to my country estate at Hanover and pass my last days there."

In the twenty-fourth ward there are 62,000 persons to the square mile. The death rate there is 29 to every 1,000 during the first year of life.

The rate on the gold coast section Dr. Kegel placed at 77 per 1,000.

LIVINGSTON AND LONG KAIN ARE HARD HIT

SMALL STREAMS IN TERRITORY ARE OUT OF BANKS AND RISING RAPIDLY

RESCUE WORK IS HINDERED BECAUSE OF FEW BOATS AND SWIFT CURRENT

Lamont, Texas, May 14.—(U.P.)—Four persons were drowned and scores of families were driven from their homes at Livingston and Long Kain, near here, when Choate Creek was overflowed by a heavy rain last night.

Rescuers attempting to reach a tree where a family of four had taken refuge, found they had been swept away by the flood.

The town of Livingston was isolated today with the entire business district flooded and families marooned on house-tops and trees in the residential district.

Communication lines to Livingston and Long Kain were down. Small streams over this entire section of Texas were out of their banks and rising rapidly.

It was estimated damage would run into hundreds of thousands of dollars in Polk county, where the flood was at its worst.

Scores of persons were first marooned early Monday when Choate Creek and Long Kain creeks, swollen by two days of heavy rain, overflowed and covered miles of farm lands.

The water supply of Livingston, which is in the center of the flood district, was cut off. The town was in darkness last night. Efforts were made today to take food to the marooned.

Rescue work was hindered because of few boats and the swift current.

Livingston, Texas, May 14.—Five members of one family were believed drowned when trapped in their home, other casualties were feared and property damage was considerable in the wake of Polk county floods, a survey showed today.

Long Kain creek was reported to have engulfed a Mrs. Burks, her daughter, son, son-in-law and a child when their home was swept away south of here. High waters prevented rescuers reaching the spot.

Rescue parties told of whole families marooned in tree tops or on roofs and said other victims may have been claimed by the waters which rose suddenly after torrential rains.

With roads and railroads still flooded transportation in the affected areas was conducted by commandeered boats and improvised craft.

Creeks were out of their banks in many parts of the county. Water was reported eight to ten feet deep at Goodrich when the Trinity river went out of its banks. Water subsided here.

Trains have not run in the district for 36 hours, 30 or 40 miles of track were crippled and repairs were not expected to be made before tonight or Wednesday.

Meanwhile searchers put out in boats to carry those marooned in various sections to comfort and safety.

Kansas City, Mo., May 14.—While several highways still were inundated in southern Kansas and southwest Missouri, flood waters which swept Kansas Saturday and claimed four lives, today were receding.

At Salina, Kansas, some fears of floods were felt as the Smokey Hill river surrounded a few homes on the eastern edge of the town. It was believed, however, the crest of the flood had passed.

The Osage river at Osceola, Mo., was rising and some fear of floods were felt there. The Grand river at Brunswick, Mo., was rising but no danger of floods were felt.

STOCKHOLM TO N. Y. FLIGHT PLANNED

Capt. Ahrenberg made a test flight Sunday and attained an average of 90 miles an hour, flying 720 miles. The plane functioned satisfactorily except for a leaky radiator.

Communication lines to Livingston and Long Kain were down. Small streams over this entire section of Texas were out of their banks and rising rapidly.

It was estimated damage would run into hundreds of thousands of dollars in Polk county, where the flood was at its worst.

Scores of persons were first marooned early Monday when Choate Creek and Long Kain creeks, swollen by two days of heavy rain, overflowed and covered miles of farm lands.

The water supply of Livingston, which is in the center of the flood district, was cut off. The town was in darkness last night. Efforts were made today to take food to the marooned.

Rescue work was hindered because of few boats and the swift current.

Livingston, Texas, May 14.—Five members of one family were believed drowned when trapped in their home, other casualties were feared and property damage was considerable in the wake of Polk county floods, a survey showed today.

Long Kain creek was reported to have engulfed a Mrs. Burks, her daughter, son-in-law and a child when their home was swept away south of here. High waters prevented rescuers reaching the spot.

Rescue parties told of whole families marooned in tree tops or on roofs and said other victims may have been claimed by the waters which rose suddenly after torrential rains.

With roads and railroads still flooded transportation in the affected areas was conducted by commandeered boats and improvised craft.

Creeks were out of their banks in many parts of the county. Water was reported eight to ten feet deep at Goodrich when the Trinity river went out of its banks. Water subsided here.

Trains have not run in the district for 36 hours, 30 or 40 miles of track were crippled and repairs were not expected to be made before tonight or Wednesday.

Meanwhile searchers put out in boats to carry those marooned in various sections to comfort and safety.

Kansas City, Mo., May 14.—While several highways still were inundated in southern Kansas and southwest Missouri, flood waters which swept Kansas Saturday and claimed four lives, today were receding.

At Salina, Kansas, some fear of floods were felt as the Smokey Hill river surrounded a few homes on the eastern edge of the town. It was believed, however, the crest of the flood had passed.

The Osage river at Osceola, Mo., was rising and some fear of floods were felt there. The Grand river at Brunswick, Mo., was rising but no danger of floods were felt.

It costs very little to recondition a MODEL T FORD

THE Ford Motor Company is making a new car, but it is still proud of the Model T. It wants every owner of one of these cars to run it as long as possible at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Because of this policy and because of the investment that millions of motorists have in Model T cars, the Ford Motor Company will continue to supply parts as long as they are needed by Ford owners.

So that you may get the greatest use from your Model T, we suggest that you take it to the nearest Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of any replacement parts that may be necessary.

You will find this the economical thing to do because a small expenditure now will help to prevent costlier repairs later on, increase the value of the car, and give you thousands of miles of additional service.

For a labor charge of only $2.60 you can have your generator put in first-class condition. A new universal joint will be installed for a labor cost of $3. Overhauling the carburetor costs $1.50; steering gear, $3.50; radiator, $7.50. A complete overhauling of the rear axle assembly runs between $5.75 and $7 for labor. An average price of $22.50 covers the overhauling of the motor and transmission.

These prices are for labor only because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The cost of these parts is low, however, because of the Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.

"King's English"

It is the king's English just as it is the king's army, the king's navy and the king's country. Everything in the tight little isle is subject to him, in theory at least. The expression is proverbial. It is sometimes credited to Shakespeare because of his use of it in the first act of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," but it antedates him.

Names Given Planets

The planets were named for the ancient deities: Jupiter was the supreme deity; Mars, the god of war; Venus, goddess of beauty and love; Neptune, god of the sea; Saturn, god of agriculture, gardening, etc.; Uranus, regarded as the personification of heaven; Mercury, god of trade (mes senger of gods).

Mental Attitude Counts

Keep your mind healthy in its action and keep a decent ethical view of life. Vanity, conceit, pomposity, will do you even more harm than lack of poise and self-confidence. Just because you are an artist you are no different from all the rest of mankind. Perhaps lots of others are artists in their natures who have never had a chance. Your mental attitude has a powerful influence upon your physical health.—Herbert Witherspoon.

Marks of Greatness

A really great man is known by three signs—generosity in the design, humanity in the execution, and moderation in success.—Bismarck.

One of the greatest character actors of the screen, Wallace Beery, has his greatest role in the swift-moving action, mystery drama, "Chinatown Nights," which opened a two day run at the Lyceum yesterday.

"Chinatown Nights" deals with the love of a scintillating woman of society for a coarse, brutal, cynical white man who rules a million Chinese through the national tong organization.

It costs very little to recondition a MODEL T FORD

THE Ford Motor Company is making a new car, but it is still proud of the Model T. It wants every owner of one of these cars to run it as long as possible at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Because of this policy and because of the investment that millions of motorists have in Model T cars, the Ford Motor Company will continue to supply parts as long as they are needed by Ford owners.

So that you may get the greatest use from your Model T, we suggest that you take it to the nearest Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of any replacement parts that may be necessary.

You will find this the economical thing to do because a small expenditure now will help to prevent costlier repairs later on, increase the value of the car, and give you thousands of miles of additional service.

For a labor charge of only $2.60 you can have your generator put in first-class condition. A new universal joint will be installed for a labor cost of $3. Overhauling the carburetor costs $1.50; steering gear, $3.50; radiator, $7.50. A complete overhauling of the rear axle assembly runs between $5.75 and $7 for labor. An average price of $22.50 covers the overhauling of the motor and transmission.

These prices are for labor only because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The cost of these parts is low, however, because of the Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.

"King's English"

It is the king's English just as it is the king's army, the king's navy and the king's country. Everything in the tight little isle is subject to him, in theory at least. The expression is proverbial. It is sometimes credited to Shakespeare because of his use of it in the first act of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," but it antedates him.

Names Given Planets

The planets were named for the ancient deities: Jupiter was the supreme deity; Mars, the god of war; Venus, goddess of beauty and love; Neptune, god of the sea; Saturn, god of agriculture, gardening, etc.; Uranus, regarded as the personification of heaven; Mercury, god of trade (mes senger of gods).

Mental Attitude Counts

Keep your mind healthy in its action and keep a decent ethical view of life. Vanity, conceit, pomposity, will do you even more harm than lack of poise and self-confidence. Just because you are an artist you are no different from all the rest of mankind. Perhaps lots of others are artists in their natures who have never had a chance. Your mental attitude has a powerful influence upon your physical health.—Herbert Wierspoun.

TRAILING PIKE FRY TO LAIR

The other evening we had the pleasure of trailing the pike fry to their lair. The wall-eyed pike fry are brought from the egg stage to the wiggler in a large building equipped with mysterious looking bottles, a gasoline engine and flowing water plus all kinds of tanks. They really are started out with more of a home at Jenkins than the baby chick receives in a brooder.

Big, husky men fondly watch the bottles to ascertain the first kick of a wiggler. The wiggler bursts his shell and slips to the top of the bottle and is then slowly shunted down to the tank to join his billions of other brothers and sisters.

His length varies from a sixteenth to an eighth of an inch. His thread-like body is surmounted with a pin-point head.

Taking out 15 cans for fry, the cans were first washed and then partly filled with water. The attendants filled a washtub with a mass of fry and then ladled small dippers of wigglers into the large cans.

Fish breathe air and the large numbers confined in the transportation cans soon exhaust the oxygen when the water is not in motion. For this reason they should be hurried immediately to the waters in which they are to be planted. The jolting of the cans in a moving wagon or a motor truck traversing bumpy roads will ordinarily cause enough splashing to aerate the water, and a rough road is not objectionable if the cans contain enough water to prevent the fish being bruised.

Should delay become unavoidable, the fish must not be allowed to stand without attention. If the fish give evidence of suffering by rising frequently to the surface of the water, the water must be aerated by means of a dipper. To do this take up a dipper full and let it pour back into the can from a height of two feet, repeating this process three or four times every ten minutes. A long-handled dipper should be provided for this purpose if you are receiving trout or bass. Pike and whitefish fry do not require this aeration but must be kept very cold by the addition of ice to the cans—if a warm day. If you have to haul them a considerable distance in warm weather it is advisable to put a chunk of ice in each can and further protect them by wrapping each can in wet burlaps or sacking.

Wall-eyed Pike and Whitefish fry should be planted in deep water, or in close proximity thereto, scattering them over a considerable area if possible. In the case of fingerling Bass, Crappie and Sunfish, it is best to deposit them in weedy bays in comparatively shallow water. Trout, both fry and fingerlings, are best deposited, a few fish in a place, near the headwaters of streams, or in small tributaries near springs. On arrival at the point of deposit some of the water in the cans should be poured off and replaced with water from the stream or lake that is to receive the fish, this process being repeated at intervals until the water in the cans is of the same temperature as that in which the fish are to be planted. This change should be gradual; haste in modifying the temperature spells disaster; better spend a half hour at it than lose your fish. Do not plant fry of any kind in the shallow bays where shiners are abundant; you only fatten the shiners.

No results were ever obtained by planting dead or dying fish. It is claimed that the hatchery is a better mother than the fish mother, for practically all the eggs are hatched at the incubating station, while out in the lake only 10 per cent survive. There are too many enemies floating about in the deep.

However, one set of figures was not obtainable and that is, how much of the pike fry released matures. Many who emptied cans yesterday will be satisfied if they catch a few messes in the next three years.

The pike fry the first season attains a length of six inches or more, picks up added weight and length the second season and is ready for the sportsmen when three years have elapsed.

ACCIDENT LEGISLATION

It is now generally agreed, both by insurance experts and many legislators who have studied the accident problem, says the Manufacturer and Industrial News Bureau, that unconditional compulsory automobile liability insurance fails of its purpose and becomes a financial and legal burden.

However, it is likewise agreed that as traffic congestion grows and the accident toll mounts, some means must be taken to curb the reckless and safeguard the public.

In California, the Joint Legislative Committee submitted a report at the beginning of the year recommending study of the accident question, revision of motor laws to fit the facts found, unremitting and uniform enforcement of driving rules, and measures to revoke licenses of any persons failing to satisfy judgments.

This is in line with the Connecticut plan which makes any driver provide security after one accident, either in the form of a bond or insurance.

It is logical that more can be done by punishment of reckless drivers and enforcement of traffic laws than by compulsion which substitutes indemnity in place of cure.

HOME-MADE AUTO TAGS HAVE NO VALUE

HOME-MADE auto tags, some crudely painted on wood or cardboard, some neatly printed either with numbers or the words "In Transit," are seen frequently on the streets and highways. Such tags have no legal standing, according to a State Highway bulletin. Neither do affidavits stating that application has been made for a license.

There is only one substitute for a license which has any legal standing. That is the permit issued by duly appointed agents of the Secretary of State in a number of cities in the state, upon a special form supplied by the Secretary of State. Such permits may be issued by these agents at the time they forward the application for license, with the necessary fee, to the Secretary of State. It is good only until the plates are received and no case more than 15 days.

If you must drive your new car while waiting for your license plates, the bulletin suggests, either get an official permit or stay close to home where you are well known.

IN dry weather, when there is little humidity in the air, it is always dangerous to throw away a lighted cigaret or burning cigar and pipe ashes. These should always be extinguished. They should never be thrown out of a car while burning.

"THE duty to enforce the law rests upon every public official and the duty to obey it rests upon every citizen," says President

Miss Cassell Addresses

Social Science Classes

Miss Rebecca Cassell of the Child Welfare Board, spoke to the social science classes last Tuesday during the fourth period at the City Hall. Her talk was very interesting to the classes as she explained the methods and the general routine of her duties, also that of other workers.

In the course of the explanations many examples of hardships and trying conditions were cited. One was that of a poor family that had to be content with a very scanty room in which to live with little choice of food or clothing. Another of a boy who had dislocated his knee and through the fault of his parents had not received proper treatment until the nurse compelled them to have the doctor's aid. Even then it may be too late as the lad's knee may have to be amputated.

Miss Cassell proved conclusively to the Seniors that her work is a decidedly necessary and worth-while one. She holds her position according to state law and works in conjunction with a county board of welfare. Children who need assistance are given proper care and much delinquency has been prevented in the county.

Senior girls remained to hear Miss Cassell on the subject of preparation for social work. She made clear that the work was extremely fascinating and that much good can be done in the world by a social service expert.

This talk was one of a series concerned with conditions in and near Brainerd and also of vocational information. The Seniors are very grateful to Miss Cassell for her interesting and instructive speech.

Winning essays in the recent W. C. T. U. contest will be read tomorrow night in the Old Court House at 8 o'clock as a part of the program to be presented by the organization. Students from B. H. S. who are to appear on the program are those who wrote the prize-winning essays, as follows:

Freshman—Barbara Zapfe.
Sophomore—Alice Olson.
Junior—Evelyn Grimstad (for Claude Holden).

THE FACULTY

Miss Taylor, the French and History instructor in the Brainerd High School, was born in Villard, Minn. She graduated from High School with a very high scholastic standing as valedictorian of the class. Her high school career was quite with her thoughts heading toward Hamline University. She graduated from the University in three years, with many scholastic honors. After teaching one year at Blooming Prairie she attended the University of Wisconsin for a summer school course. Hutchinson, Minn., next claimed her for a member on the faculty, she taught French and was the school librarian.

Before coming to Brainerd she took a summer school course at the University of Minnesota to keep up in modern methods in the teaching of French. Miss Taylor has taught English, French, and History but has not indulged in many outside activities, although she does admit swimming and camping are her favorites. Her main hobby is reading which consists mainly of French novels and histories.

When declamatory contests are in order, all aspiring declaimers find able assistance from Miss Taylor who listens to their feeble or sonorous attempts to conquer the world, oratorically speaking. She has brought before the public many an embryo W. J. Bryan and those who have been given the benefit of her instruction are very grateful to her for her guidance.

Among the other extra-curricular activities which Miss Taylor sponsors is the French club which has been active all year. She has also been one of the advisers of the Tri-Hi, a comparatively new organization which is now flourishing under the guidance of Mrs. Kasch and Miss Taylor.

There is no question that Miss Taylor, as well as other members of our faculty, is an asset to our school and B. H. S. is fortunate to have her as its instructor.

Campfire Notes

The Netopew group of Campfire girls is planning a dinner for next Thursday at Jones' cottage on Gull Lake. Lucille Wroble who is working for the rank of "Firemaker" will have charge of preparing the meal.

The campfire groups of the city will camp at Clearwater this summer. Each group will select a name, and the name with the majority of votes will be chosen for the camp.

Evangeline Twist and Margaret Casey who are working for their highest rank, have charge of a group of "Bluebirds" at the Harrison school.

The girls had a candy sale at the Old Court House last Thursday. The returns will be used for paying for the tans and armbands which were sent for recently.

Miss Haug and Miss Sundberg will not be here this summer and the girls are trying to find a guardian for the summer vacation.

YE EDITOR

Spring is here at last; beautiful spring. This is the time of the year when tall thin men in gray checked trousers begin to play golf and short fat men in gray checked trousers begin to play golf and spry old men in gray checked trousers begin to play golf. This is the time of year when the sap is flowing through the trees, and the saps go strolling through the parks.

May we pause a moment here to quote a famous quotation? "In spring a young man's fancy turns from thoughts to love." This factor is no more evident than right here in our own dear old high. See that fellow there? The one with the sublime look upon his face staring out into space? A penny for his thoughts? Don't waste your money, kind sir; he wasn't thinking.

No, folks, there is nothing wrong, you needn't worry. It is just spring and we are all human.

GEORGE McCAFFREY BEATS DON GEIST FOR THE TENNIS CROWN

CONSISTENT PLAYING OF McCAFFREY BRINGS HIM VICTORY

Among the chief events which took place this week in the realm of sport was the final match of the tennis tournament which was taken by George McCaffrey, who as we remember, won the school championship last year.

Don Geist, his opponent, who was the runner-up a year ago, played a flashy and brilliant game, and at one point in the final set held the games at 5-2 and set point but failed to come through for a victory. George, as usual, played the fast, consistent game which has characterized his playing for the last two years and it may be said that he well deserved to win.

The games in the three sets were as follows: 6-1, 1-6, 9-7.

FRESHMAN GIRLS BEAT SOPHS AT KITTENBALL

The girls kittenball teams, just organized, met Tuesday, at the grounds near the water tower, in the first game of the season. The game between the Freshmen and Sophomores was a fast and lively one, the Freshmen girls winning over the Sophomores by a score of 14-4.

The Sophomores quite frightened the Freshman girls when they employed a double play in the first inning to retire the Freshmen girls in quick succession. The outlook seemed gloomy for the Freshies but they were undaunted and soon forged ahead of their rivals.

Harriet Halvorson was the outstanding player. Her efforts were largely responsible for the good showing made by the first year girls.

Why Teachers Grow Old

TRI-HI WEEK END PARTY TERMED HUGE SUCCESS

A week end party was enjoyed by the Tri-Hi girls out at Gull Lake last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Cottages were furnished by Mildred E. Johnson and Louise Clausen. Mrs. Kasch and Miss Taylor took the part as chaperones.

As far as the meals were concerned there was not much argumentation as to who was to make the meals, as the committees had been appointed for each meal. Some of the girls went swimming, although the water wasn't any too warm.

The girls present were: Doris Geist, Kathryn Albright, Glenadeane Mahood, Amy Markham, Helen and Kathryn Sheets, Mildred E. Johnson, Alice Peterson, Roberta Crawford, Alberta Smith, Genevieve Jenkins, Imadelle Warner, Isabel Reagan, Louis Clausen, Betty Robertson, Edith Heald, Amanda Holmes, Almira Christenson, and Donna Cunningham.

All left saying that they'd had a very wonderful time and expressing regret that the party couldn't have been longer.

SENIORS-JUNIORS BRAVE RAIN TO HOLD PICNIC AT BIRCHDALE

FACULTY

Warren Kasch, Brainerd's coach and athletic supervisor, was born in Pecatonica, Illinois. By the time he was ready for his schooling, the family moved so that his high school training was received at Rockford. While attending high school, Mr. Kasch participated in all major sports including football, basketball, and track. The basketball team, of which he was a member took part in the state tournament all four years, won the championship in his Sophomore year and lost by only one point in his Senior year.

Our coach captured the record for the greatest number of baskets made in one game in the Big 7 Conference in Illinois while he was playing on his high school team and up to the present time his record has never been broken. Mr. Kasch also did his part on the school track team and carried off three firsts in the district meet.

Lack of time at college (Cornell) made it impossible for Mr. Kasch to participate in more than two major sports—football and basketball. He was selected captain of the basketball team during his Junior year but was forced out by serious injuries. This misfortune however was not sufficient to deaden his love for sports and although he was unable to participate himself he was placed in charge of the Freshmen basketball team. Mr. Kasch states that although he was deprived of doing his part in playing, the training he received while coaching the undergraduates was very valuable to him in his life work later on.

During the summers between terms and after school hours our coach did every thing from trimming the campus shrubbery and sweeping the auditorium to running an ice cream factory, and to defray vacation expenses he sold shirts to his fellow students.

In order to have sufficient time for athletics, Mr. Kasch rose at 4 o'clock in the morning before the school was coming to life and peddled milk throughout the city.

At the present time Mr. Kasch's chief ambition is to become better acquainted with the program which has played such an important part in his life by further study along lines of business methods in athletics.

TRACK NOTES

By John Hoffbauer, Jr.

Although there are a few track men true to their colors and are aiding in building a team for competition in the coming meet at Little Falls, others fail to report or at least show that they would like to learn the game.

Whether because of scholastic difficulties or other reasons of less importance some just do not report for this field of sport. Track in its place is one of the major sports of colleges and is fast becoming a rival of baseball for spring time honors.

It is in this sport that individuality counts 100 per cent and besides entering competition in high school one may continue on all through his life for national honors.

So let every boy who isn't doing some honest-to-goodness work after school come out for track and after all who knows, there might be another Nurmi or Paddock in the lot?

More than one high school boy has won his so-called "wings" by copying some event in the Olympics or at the popular relays.

PAVILION SHELTERS THE UPPER CLASSMEN AT ANNUAL PICNIC

The weather man rarely escaped making a host of enemies last Friday afternoon but luckily for him, approximately 125 strong-hearted and determined Juniors and Seniors merely turned on him a cold and defiant shoulder and braved an all-day rain in order to carry out their plans for the picnic that the Seniors give for the Juniors each spring.

A few arguments in favor of postponing the whole affair gained some headway but as soon as the Seniors heard of them their disappointment manifested itself so vigorously that plans were continued and a rush call was made at Birchdale to secure that pavilion for the occasion in place of Rocky Point, the intended destination.

But despite the steady drizzle, the picnicers' spirits were not dampened; they waited impatiently for the close of the 7th period and then proceeded to don their slickers and catch the first ride out. By about 5 o'clock everyone had arrived. Needless to say, the pavilion was put into immediate use. But that isn't all. It is rumored that a couple of warm blooded Senior boys went — of all places—swimming!!

And O, what a welcome sight was the refreshments committee coming up over the hill, arms laden with dish after dish of salmon loaf, fruit salad, buns, pickles, coffee, and ice cream comes! Never was mess more appreciated than by that cold and positively starved army.

Before the last traces of dinner had disappeared who should come in but the DeMolay orchestra. So the weather was completely forgotten the rest of the evening.

The Senior class members acting in the capacity of "hosts" felt the responsibility and were very sorry for the conditions under which the picnic, which they were so anxious to prove a delightful memory to the Juniors, was held, but they were greatly relieved by the grace and good-will of the visitors and their apparently sincere enjoyment of the occasion.

JUNIORS COP TITLES IN INTERCLASS CONTESTS

Winning the interclass track meet and being the superiors in kittenball the class of '30 seems to excel in sports. Monday night the championship game of kittenball between the Juniors and Seniors showed the skill of the Juniors when they defeated the upper classmen by the overwhelming score of 17 to 5.

In the first inning Lammon started out right by knocking a three-base hit. Paine, the next man up, hit the ball into right field and made first and brought in Lammon. Gabiou, the next man up, knocked a fly in center field which "Cub" Innes caught. Hautala and Foster also scored.

In the second half of the first inning Elling walked, Wise and Innes fanned out, Swason walked and G. McCaffrey fanned out.

Hautala got in a "hot-box" in the first of the third and was put out. The first home run was made by Orris Larson in the last of the third inning. Foster and Hautala also made homers for the Juniors. Bernard Foster showed up well as pitcher.

TRAILING PIKE FRY TO LAIR

THE other evening we had the pleasure of trailing the pike fry to their lair. The wall-eyed pike fry are brought from the egg stage to the wiggler in a large building equipped with mysterious looking bottles, a gasoline engine and flowing water plus all kinds of tanks. They really are started out with more of a home at Jenkins than the baby chick receives in a brooder.

Big, husky men fondly watch the bottles to ascertain the first kick of a wiggler. The wiggler bursts his shell and slips to the top of the bottle and is then slowly shunted down to the tank to join his billions of other brothers and sisters.

His length varies from a sixteenth to an eighth of an inch. His thread-like body is surmounted with a pin-point head.

Taking out 15 cans for fry, the cans were first washed and then partly filled with water. The attendants filled a washtub with a mass of fry and then ladled small dippers of wigglers into the large cans.

Fish breathe air and the large numbers confined in the transportation cans soon exhaust the oxygen when the water is not in motion. For this reason they should be hurried immediately to the waters in which they are to be planted. The jolting of the cans in a moving wagon or a motor truck traversing bumpy roads will ordinarily cause enough splashing to aerate the water, and a rough road is not objectionable if the cans contain enough water to prevent the fish being bruised.

Should delay become unavoidable, the fish must not be allowed to stand without attention. If the fish give evidence of suffering by rising frequently to the surface of the water, the water must be aerated by means of a dipper. To do this take up a dipper full and let it pour back into the can from a height of two feet, repeating this process three or four times every ten minutes. A long-handled dipper should be provided for this purpose if you are receiving trout or bass. Pike and whitefish fry do not require this aeration but must be kept very cold by the addition of ice to the cans—if a warm day. If you have to haul them a considerable distance in warm weather it is advisable to put a chunk of ice in each can and further protect them by wrapping each can in wet burlaps or sacking.

Wall-eyed Pike and Whitefish fry should be planted in deep water, or in close proximity thereto, scattering them over a considerable area if possible. In the case of fingerling Bass, Crappie and Sunfish, it is best to deposit them in weedy bays in comparatively shallow water. Trout, both fry and fingerlings, are best deposited, a few fish in a place, near the headwaters of streams, or in small tributaries near springs. On arrival at the point of deposit some of the water in the cans should be poured off and replaced with water from the stream or lake that is to receive the fish, this process being repeated at intervals until the water in the cans is of the same temperature as that in which the fish are to be planted. This change should be gradual; haste in modifying the temperature spells disaster; better spend a half hour at it than lose your fish. Do not plant fry of any kind in the shallow bays where shiners are abundant; you only fatten the shiners.

No results were ever obtained by planting dead or dying fish. It is claimed that the hatchery is a better mother than the fish mother, for practically all the eggs are hatched at the incubating station, while out in the lake only 10 per cent survive. There are too many enemies floating about in the deep.

However, one set of figures was not obtainable and that is, how much of the pike fry released matures. Many who emptied cans yesterday will be satisfied if they catch a few messes in the next three years.

The pike fry the first season attains a length of six inches or more, picks up added weight and length the second season and is ready for the sportsmen when three years have elapsed.

ACCIDENT LEGISLATION

It is now generally agreed, both by insurance experts and many legislators who have studied the accident problem, says the Manufacturer and Industrial News Bureau, that unconditional compulsory automobile liability insurance fails of its purpose and becomes a financial and legal burden.

However, it is likewise agreed that as traffic congestion grows and the accident toll mounts, some means must be taken to curb the reckless and safeguard the public.

In California, the Joint Legislative Committee submitted a report at the beginning of the year recommending study of the accident question, revision of motor laws to fit the facts found, unremitting and uniform enforcement of driving rules, and measures to revoke licenses of any persons failing to satisfy judgments.

This is in line with the Connecticut plan which makes any driver provide security after one accident, either in the form of a bond or insurance.

It is logical that more can be done by punishment of reckless drivers and enforcement of traffic laws than by compulsion which substitutes indemnity in place of cure.

HOME-MADE AUTO TAGS HAVE NO VALUE

HOME-MADE auto tags, some crudely painted on wood or cardboard, some neatly printed either with numbers or the words "In Transit," are seen frequently on the streets and highways. Such tags have no legal standing, according to a State Highway bulletin. Neither do affidavits stating that application has been made for a license.

There is only one substitute for a license which has any legal standing. That is the permit issued by duly appointed agents of the Secretary of State in a number of cities in the state, upon a special form supplied by the Secretary of State. Such permits may be issued by these agents at the time they forward the application for license, with the necessary fee, to the Secretary of State. It is good only until the plates are received and no case more than 15 days.

If you must drive your new car while waiting for your license plates, the bulletin suggests, either get an official permit or stay close to home where you are well known.

IN dry weather, when there is little humidity in the air, it is always dangerous to throw away a lighted cigaret or burning cigar and pipe ashes. These should always be extinguished. They should never be thrown out of a car while burning.

"THE duty to enforce the law rests upon every public official and the duty to obey it rests upon every citizen," says President Hoover.

THE FACULTY

Miss Taylor, the French and History instructor in the Brainerd High School, was born in Villard, Minn. She graduated from High School with a very high scholastic record as valedictorian of the class. Her career was quite with her thoughts heading toward Hamline University. She graduated from the University in three years, with many scholastic honors. After teaching one year at Blooming Prairie she attended the University of Wisconsin for a summer school course. Hutchinson, Minn., next claimed her for a member on the faculty, she taught French and was the school librarian.

Before coming to Brainerd she took a summer school course at the University of Minnesota to keep up in modern methods in the teaching of French. Miss Taylor has taught English, French, and History but has not indulged in many outside activities, although she does admit swimming and camping are her favorites. Her main hobby is reading which consists mainly of French novels and histories.

When declamatory contests are in order, all aspiring declaimers find able assistance from Miss Taylor who listens to their feeble or sonorous attempts to conquer the world, oratorically speaking. She has brought before the public many an embryo W. J. Bryan and those who have been given the benefit of her instruction are very grateful to her for her guidance.

Among the other extra-curricular activities which Miss Taylor sponsors is the French club which has been active all year. She has also been one of the advisers of the Tri-Hi, a comparatively new organization which is now flourishing under the guidance of Mrs. Kasch and Miss Taylor.

There is no question that Miss Taylor, as well as other members of our faculty, is an asset to our school and B. H. S. is fortunate to have her as its instructor.

Campfire Notes

The Netoppew group of Campfire girls is planning a dinner for next Thursday at Jones' cottage on Gull Lake. Lucille Wroble who is working for the rank of "Firemaker" will have charge of preparing the meal.

The campfire groups of the city will camp at Clearwater this summer. Each group will select a name, and the name with the majority of votes will be chosen for the camp.

Evangeline Twist and Margaret Casey who are working for their highest rank, have charge of a group of "Bluebirds" at the Harrison school.

The girls had a candy sale at the Old Court House last Thursday. The returns will be used for paying for the tams and armbands which were sent for recently.

Miss Haug and Miss Sundberg will not be here this summer and the girls are trying to find a guardian for the summer vacation.

YE EDITOR

Spring is here at last; beautiful spring. This is the time of the year when tall thin men in gray checked trousers begin to play golf and short fat men in gray checked trousers begin to play golf and spray old men in gray checked trousers begin to play golf. This is the time of year when the sap is flowing through the trees, and the saps go strolling through the parks.

May we pause a moment here to quote a famous quotation? "In spring a young man's fancy turns from thoughts—to love." This factor is no more evident than right here in our own dear old high. See that fellow there? The one with the sublime look upon his face staring out into space? A penny for his thoughts? Don't waste your money, kind sir; he wasn't thinking.

No, folks, there is nothing wrong, you needn't worry. It is just spring and we are all human.

GEORGE McCAFFREY BEATS DON GEIST FOR THE TENNIS CROWN

CONSISTENT PLAYING OF McCAFFREY BRINGS HIM VICTORY

Among the chief events which took place this week in the realm of sport was the final match of the tennis tournament which was taken by George McCaffrey, who as we remember, won the school championship last year.

Don Geist, his opponent, who was the runner-up a year ago, played a flashy and brilliant game, and at one point in the final set held the games at 5-2 and set point but failed to come through for a victory. George, as usual, played the fast, consistent game which has characterized his playing for the last two years and it may be said that he well deserved to win.

The games in the three sets were as follows: 6-1, 1-6, 9-7.

FRESHMAN GIRLS BEAT SOPHS AT KITTENBALL

The girls kittenball teams, just organized, met Tuesday, at the grounds near the water tower, in the first game of the season. The game between the Freshmen and Sophomores was a fast and lively one, the Freshmen girls winning over the Sophomores by a score of 14-4.

The Sophomores quite frightened the Freshman girls when they employed a double play in the first inning to retire the Freshmen girls in quick succession. The outlook seemed gloomy for the Freshies but they were undaunted and soon forged ahead of their rivals.

Harriet Halvorson was the outstanding player. Her efforts were largely responsible for the good showing made by the first year girls.

HERE; BASS SEASON TO OPEN JUNE 21

Thousands of Minnesota anglers today packed their gear and started on the "big parade" to the pike fishing grounds prepared to wet their lines on the season's opening, Wednesday. Many were passing through Brainerd this afternoon on their way to cottages in the lake region near here.

Fishermen were warned, however, that bass cannot be taken at this season and any that are hooked must be returned to the water.

Bass season does not open until May 29 in the southern zone and on June 21 in the northern zone. There is no zone law on pike.

More than 500 licenses have already been issued here to date, it was reported this morning from the office of the county auditor, where family fishing licenses are selling for one dollar each and individual licenses are going at 50 cents apiece. Non-resident licenses are selling at $3 each but as yet none have been issued here.

Pike are hungry and ready to bite viciously, lake men reported today. Several thousand pike will be taken from lakes within a close distance from Brainerd alone on the opening day.

Watching the Scoreboard

(By United Press)

Yesterday's Hero—George Uhle who won his sixth straight game by pitching the Detroit Tigers to a 5 to 3 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics. George Earnshaw collapsed in the seventh and the Tigers got to him for five runs.

Driving in three runs, Earl Averill, Indians' recruit outfielder, started in Cleveland's 4 to 3 victory over the New York Yankees. Hudlin held the Yanks to six hits.

Danny MacFayden had the better of Grady Adkins in a pitcher's duel and the Boston Red Sox beat the Chicago White Sox, 2 to 1. Bigelow hit a homer accounted for Boston.

Adolfo Luque let the Giants down with six hits and Cincinnati beat New York, 7 to 0. Swanson and Luque hit home runs.

Barney Friberg's double in the ninth with the bases full enabled the Philadelphia Phillies to nose out the St. Louis Cardinals, 10 to 9. The defeat knocked the Cards out of first place.

Johnny Moore, Chicago rookie outfielder, playing his first complete major league game, made two brilliant catches and drove in three runs as the Cubs beat the Braves 6 to 4.

Collecting eighteen hits the Pittsburgh Pirates handed Brooklyn a 12 to 4 defeat, sinking the Robins deeper into the National league cellar.

Ormsby was able to sit up in bed yesterday.

MISS COLLETT CONTINUES IN WINNING FORM

DRIVING TOWARDS THE BRITISH WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

WINS SECOND ROUND MATCH FROM MISS M. BRYANT, 3 UP AND 2 TO PLAY

St. Andrews, Scotland, May 14.—(U.P.)—Miss Glenna Collett continued her drive toward the British women's golf championship finals today when she won her second round match from Miss M. Bryant, of Ashford Manor, 3 up and 2 to play.

The American champion was in good form, despite the unfavorable change in the weather. A strong, chilling wind blew across the course.

Miss Collett was driving a long ball, but her putting was weak in spots. Otherwise, experts believed, she would have reached the turn 5 up instead of 1 up.

The cards:

Miss Collett.....554 555 435—41
Miss Bryant.....544 564 645—43

In—

Miss Collett.....546 555 4—34
Miss Bryant.....545 566 5—36

Miss Marion Hollins, second of the three Americans remaining in the tourney, also advanced to the third round when she defeated Miss P. Ramsay, of Almouth, four up and three to play.

Mrs. S. J. Mulqueen, of Toronto, Canada, won her second round match from Miss A. N. Hyde, Sandy Lodge, one up.

Miss Gertrude Boothby, of Rochester, Minn., won from Mrs. J. A. D. Bell, of Littlestone, 6 and 5.

One of the three Americans must be eliminated tomorrow, however, Miss Boothby having been paired against Miss Hollins in the third round.

Walter Johnson Convalescing

LEAD IN BOTH LEAGUES SHIFT BACK AND FORTH

YANKEES AND ATHLETICS TIED FOR FIRST PLACE IN THE AMERICAN LEAGUE

CHICAGO CUBS ARE HALF GAME AHEAD OF CARDS IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, May 14.—Two close, hard-fought pennant races are forecast in the major leagues as a result of showings of the contenders during the first month.

The lead in both leagues has shifted back and forth and today the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics are tied for first place in the American League and the Chicago Cubs are half a game ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League.

Since the two races got well under way, three clubs have been out in front in each league. The Braves, Cardinals and Cubs have set the pace in the National League, while the Yankees, Athletics and Browns have shared the American League lead.

Two dangerous-looking ball clubs which got off poorly but now seem to have struck their stride are the Pirates and Tigers, occupants of fourth place in the two leagues. Those two teams are playing the best ball in their respective leagues and will bear watching.

The most disappointing major league team has been the New York Giants. On occasions, the Giants have looked like world-beaters only to turn around the next day and play like minor leaguers.

Washington is another club which has failed to live up to its early promise. Bad breaks, the worst of which was the illness of Walter Johnson, have handicapped the Senators.

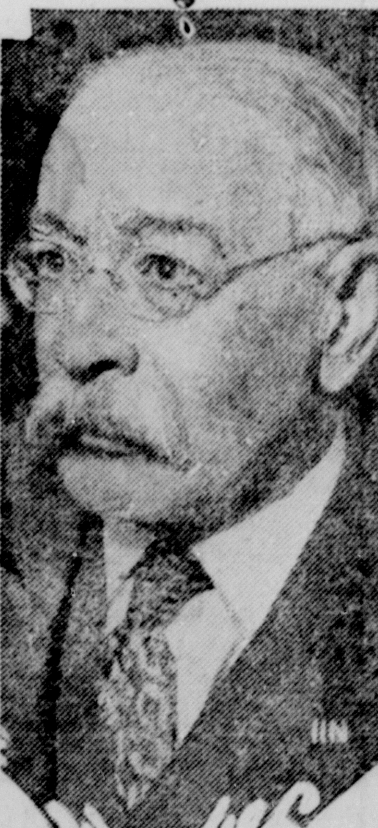

Two National League teams, the Braves and Phillies, have shown unexpectedly good form. Although the Braves got off faster than the Phillies, Burt Shotton's team is coming on fast and is only a game out of third place.

The Chicago White Sox are in a slump after a good start and have won only two games out of the last nine played. The Reds also have played in-and-out ball in the National League.

The least said about the Brooklyn Robins and the Boston Red Sox, the better. Brooklyn undoubtedly is the poorest excuse in years for a major league club.

After winning eight straight, the Yankees are in the throes of a slump and have dropped three in a row. The Yanks are having trouble with their pitching. Durocher is beginning to wobble slightly at shortstop.

AUTOMATIC WASHERS DEFEAT OAKLAND-PONTIACS 2 GAMES IN FIRST OF SERIES

The Automatic Washers and the Oakland-Pontiacs met last evening in a three-game match, the first of nine games to be bowled for the city championship and possession of the Dr. Badeaux Bowling Trophy, now in the hands of the Alderman-Maghan team, last year's champions.

The Pontiacs won the first game by 52 pins, were badly beaten in the second game, and lost the last game by 16 pins, having two poor counts that beat them out.

These teams will probably bowl the second brace of games the last of this week, the winner of five of the nine games to be declared champion.

Dietz, with a 241 count, had single high game for the evening, and Al Johnson's 606 was the high three-game total.

CITY BALL LEAGUE OPENER SCHEDULED ON ROSKO GROUNDS

Y. M. C. A. AND SOUTHSIDE TO CLASH THURSDAY EVENING IN FIRST GAME

MAYOR LITTLE TO THROW FIRST BALL; OFFICIALS TO MEET AT "Y" TONIGHT

Baseball will make its official bow to Brainerd hursday evening when the South Side meets the Y. M. C. A. on the Rosko field diamond. The municipal field not being in condition for playing yet, the league has accepted the invitation of the Rosko brothers to use the new diamond laid out adjacent to the aviation field, which is one mile from the uptown business district by way of 13th St.

League officials will meet at the Y. M. C. A. tonight to take care of any unfinished business in regards to the opening of the league.

Batteries of the two teams for the opening game are not definite yet but for the Southsiders, Schwendeman and Hautala will probably hold down catcher's and pitcher's positions respectively to start the game. On the Y. M. C. A., Ringer as catcher and Whitlock and Lorrie Swanson will try at the mound position.

Mayor Frank Little has accepted the invitation to throw the first ball for the opening game.

Baseball fans who have inspected the Rosko field have been enthusiastic in their praise of the diamond which has just been laid out. There being several acres of ground available for the ball ground, no ground rules will be necessary for a game. And there will be plenty of room for parking space for cars. The ground which is high and dry has just the right proportion of loam and clay, which makes a firm diamond that is good under all kinds of weather conditions. Rosko brothers spent several days in using tractor, grader and the road roller to make the field level and in the best of condition for a first class baseball field.

League officials trust that the public will respond to attendance for the opening game and judge for themselves as to the fitness of the diamond.

Players who will wear uniforms for the Southside Thursday night include: W. Peterson, W. Hautala, B. Fitzharris, Schwendeman, Harry Bernard, L. Hanson, Uddenberg, Loom, Aro, L. Gleason, S. Erickson, Bedal, J. Johnson and Nutting.

Donie and his Pirates are all ready sighting a flag for Pittsburgh again this fall.

By QUIN HALL

IN LOOKING over the pennant possibilities in this year's National League scamp, it isn't advisable to totally ignore the chances of the Pittsburgh Pirates. For a time this Spring it looked as if the Waner brothers and their "poison" would be lacking from the Pirates' lineup when the season broke, but the wise ones knew all along that nothing like this would happen. "Bringing the Pirates into Pittsburgh without the Waner boys" was out on the high seas armed with a cap pistol, they choried. While it probably would not be quite so bad as that, even the most conservative of the fans realized that Barney Dreyfuss would have to sign up the famous brothers or be forced to listen to much howling from the Pittsburgh house-tops.

Donie Bush is back again at the helm. While the Pirates fans screamed for Donie's scalp early last Spring when the club was in a bad slump, and while Bush was planned unmercifully for the manner in which he handled his play-ers in the World Series with the Yankees, Dreyfuss refused to de-throne his pilot. Later last Sum-mer, when the Pirates got back into the fight in earnest, the bad feeling toward Bush was quickly forgotten and the fans were again flocking to Forbes Field.

Before this season opened Bush figured that the N. L. pennant winner this year would be Pirates or the Cubs. It is natural for a manager to figure his own team in there fighting for first place at the finish but, on playing strength, Bush has a good foundation for his prediction. He isn't just talking. Pittsburgh has a ball club and will be hard to beat. Naturally the average fan will figure in the Giants and the Cardinals making it a four-team race. And there is a chance—an outside chance—that some dark horse will upset the whole bean pot, though this is hardly probable.

While Bush will have to get along this year without the services of Glenn Wright, many believe that Dreyfuss pulled a smart deal when he traded the shortstop to Brooklyn and grabbed Jess Petty and Riconda. Petty will win for the Pirates, and it is quite likely that he will do better at Pittsburgh than he did toiling at Brooklyn. Riconda is a handy gent to have around, too.

To fill the gap left vacant by the departure of Wright, the diminutive Pirate pilot has shoved Pie Traynor over to short field, into the fight in earnest, the bad where he is proving very efficient. It will be recalled that Pie originally came to Pittsburgh from the Southern Association as a short-stop but was shifted to the hot corner.

Jim Stroner, the recruit from Wichita in the Western League, will probably be used regularly during the year at the third corner. Jim clouted the onion at a .367 clip at Wichita last season, and may prove to be good with the hickory twig in fast company.

Earl Sheely, a .381 hitter with Sacramento in the Pacific Coast League in 1928, replaces Grantham at the initial stop and Sparky Adams will be seen operating at the keystone sack.

Bush has plenty of outfielders to work with the Waner boys and a good catching staff, too. Donie enters this year's canter with a better pitching crew than he had a year ago, when a lot of his twirl-ers were ailing. The Pirates are going to be especially strong on southpaws this Summer, with top honors in this division going to Petty, who is considered by many as one of the best side-wheelers ever to toe the hill in the circuit.

Altogether Bush seems to have a well balanced club. He has just reason to figure the Pirates as pennant probabilities!

Gypsy Trails

The romance of the road is irresistible to most healthy, vigorous people. Wallied up within most hearts is the desire to travel. Whenever man is happy he wants to travel. His deepest emotions move him to go where he hasn't been. The gypsy is the irresistible youth of the world; he has in his language no word for "duty," and none for "possession"—he is the one man who is free, says American Magazine.

Woodcut in Old Book

"The oldest printed book in the world known today, 'The Diamond Sutra,' a section of the Buddhist scriptures, is illustrated with a woodcut," Mr. Knauff finds. "It was printed in China in 828 A. D. It was found in 1907 by Sir Aurel Stein, and is in the form of a roll, like the Greek and Roman books."—Golden Book.

Couldn't Bluff Teacher

"Now, my dear," said a Howard mother when her second-primary daughter brought home her grade card as the Courant tells it, "I am certainly not pleased with this record." Daughter replied, "Well, I told the teacher you wouldn't like it, but she wouldn't change it."—Copper's Weekly.

Take Time for Courtesy

There are not many things that so clearly reveal a fineness of soul as does politeness. It is a grace of rare charm, and is not likely to be too much praised by us. The increase of courteous demeanor and address in the business world in the last quarter of a century has been much in evidence. Life is not so short but there is always time for courtesy.

Complexion Shades in Stockings for Women

The new shades in which stockings are made are causing much comment. It seems generally agreed that the most popular this season will be the complexion shades. Many, of very sheer chiffon, come in dark beige, tan and a sun-tan tone. These are to be worn with frocks of the new gay prints fabrics, which have touches of red, orange, beige, brown or any other allied colors. For wear with the tailored costumes the dark brown tones are most appropriate, their very sheerness taking away any impression of heaviness or too somber appearance.

Clocked effects are found in new and interesting designs, some very narrow, others wide enough to cover entirely the ankle bone. For evening wear there are several designs that extend far up on the leg and end with a fancy motif, either conventional or modernistic.

Mesh stockings are made in new weaves that are so exquisitely woven that they look like the one-time popular face veils.

Gypsy Trails

The romance of the road is irresistible to most healthy, vigorous people. Wallied up within most hearts is the desire to travel. Whenever man is happy he wants to travel. His deepest emotions move him to go where he hasn't been. The gypsy is the irresistible youth of the world; he has in his language no word for "duty," and none for "possession"—he is the one man who is free, says American Magazine.

Woodcut in Old Book

"The oldest printed book in the world known today, 'The Diamond Sutra,' a section of the Buddhist scriptures, is illustrated with a woodcut," Mr. Knauff finds. "It was printed in China in 828 A. D. It was found in 1907 by Sir Aurel Stein, and is in the form of a roll, like the Greek and Roman books."—Golden Book.

Couldn't Bluff Teacher

"Now, my dear," said a Howard mother when her second-primary daughter brought home her grade card as the Courant tells it, "I am certainly not pleased with this record." Daughter replied, "Well, I told the teacher you wouldn't like it, but she wouldn't change it."—Copper's Weekly.

Ribbon for Typewriter

Typewriter ribbons are usually made of good quality nainsook closely woven of fine even thread spun from the best long-fiber Sea Island cotton. They are linked by means of special machinery so that each fiber becomes thoroughly soaked.

Take Time for Courtesy

There are not many things that so clearly reveal a fineness of soul as does politeness. It is a grace of rare charm, and is not likely to be too much praised by us. The increase of courteous demeanor and address in the business world in the last quarter of a century has been much in evidence. Life is not so short but there is always time for courtesy.

Complexion Shades in Stockings for Women

The new shades in which stockings are made are causing much comment. It seems generally agreed that the most popular this season will be the complexion shades. Many, of very sheer chiffon, come in dark beige, tan and a sun-tan tone. These are to be worn with frocks of the new gay prints fabrics, which have touches of red, orange, beige, brown or any other allied colors. For wear with the tailored costumes the dark brown tones are most appropriate, their very sheerness taking away any impression of heaviness or too somber appearance.

Clocked effects are found in new and interesting designs, some very narrow, others wide enough to cover entirely the ankle bone. For evening wear there are several designs that extend far up on the leg and end with a fancy motif, either conventional or modernistic.

Mesh stockings are made in new weaves that are so exquisitely woven that they look like the one-time popular face veils.

The need of insurance is a basic need—primal, intuitive, fundamental. The J. F. Hawkins store was broken into last evening, but instead of the intruder getting anything, he left forty cents on the floor. The work is thought to be that of an amateur.

The sessions of the annual meeting of the Crow Wing County Teachers association will open tonight at the high school. Pres. W. A. Shoemaker of St. Cloud will be present at this meeting. Mayor Halstead and Sup. of Schools T. B. Hartley will give talks.

McKinley Relieved Of $80 in Seeing the Minneapolis Sights

P. A. McKinley of Brainerd has learned all about Minneapolis' new skyscrapers—but the knowledge cost him $80.

McKinley sat in a hamburger shop at Fifteenth street and Nicollet avenue. He expressed a desire to see "these new skyscrapers" of the city, but explained he didn't know where the buildings were, or what their names were.

Two men assured McKinley they could guide him. McKinley accepted. They started. The Fosbury tower, the Rand tower, the First National-Soo Line building and the court house tower were shown to McKinley. He liked it.

"Now we're going to show you one more thing—very unusual," his guides assured him. They did. They took McKinley into a doorway at Fifteenth and Washington avenues N. slugged him and took $80 in cash.

She was married June 15, 1887, at her home in Cavendish, that state, to Charles Henry Wiley. Later, they came west, locating first at Brainerd, where they resided for three years. In 1890, the family moved to Dickinson to make their permanent home. For more than 25 years the family lived on the present site of the federal building in Dickinson.

The sessions of the annual meeting of the Crow Wing County Teachers' association will open tonight at the high school. Pres. W. A. Shoemaker of St. Cloud will be present at this meeting. Mayor Halstead and Sup. of Schools T. B. Hartley will give talks.

Judge W. H. Mantor returned this afternoon from a very pleasant trip to California to visit relatives.

A. E. Moberg will open tomorrow in the Gardner block with a large stock of salvage taken from the Hartley building after the fire.

J. L. Smith has been in the city for a few days making preliminary arrangements for the improvements to be made in the Sleeper block. The additions to the rear will be of solid brick and they will give J. F. McGinnis a large area of extra floor space for his big department store.

McKinley Relieved Of $80 in Seeing the Minneapolis Sights

P. A. McKinley of Brainerd has learned all about Minneapolis' new skyscrapers—but the knowledge cost him $80.

McKinley sat in a hamburger shop at Fifteenth street and Nicollet avenue. He expressed a desire to see "these new skyscrapers" of the city, but explained he didn't know where the buildings were, or what their names were.

Two men assured McKinley they could guide him. McKinley accepted. They started. The Fosha tower, the Rand tower, the First National-Soo Line building and the court house tower were shown to McKinley. He liked it.

"Now we're going to show you one more thing—very unusual," his guides assured him. They did. They took McKinley into a doorway at Fifteenth and Washington avenues. N. slugged him and took $80 in cash.

MRS. C. H. WILEY DIES

Former Resident of Brainerd Passes
Away at Dickinson, N. D.,
Last Week

Mrs. Katherine Deane Wiley, wife of C. H. Wiley and resident of Dickinson, N. D., for nearly 40 years, died at a hospital there last week. Funeral services were held on Sunday.

In the obituary published by the Dickinson paper it is related that she was born August 22, 1861 in Shoreham, Vt., of parents who traced their ancestry back to Colonial days. Her mother was a lineal descendant of two presidents of the United States, John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

As a girl, she attended the public and private schools of her native state, among them being Black River academy at Ludlow, where former President Calvin Coolidge received a part of his education. For several years after her graduation, she followed the profession of teaching.

She was married June 15, 1887, at her home in Cavendish, that state, to Charles Henry Wiley. Later, they came west, locating first at Brainerd, where they resided for three years. In 1890, the family moved to Dickinson to make their permanent home. For more than 25 years the family lived on the present site of the federal building in Dickinson.

Alway, chief of the division of soil at the University Farm, and one of the best known soil specialists in the country gave a talk, and also demonstrated the results of experiments which are for the purpose of building up the state farms taken over by the department through mortgage foreclosures. Daphne

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

TO escape the nagging of a stepmother and the selfishness of her stepfather, Daphne Haines, seventeen and beautiful, leaves home determined to make her own living. She has a difficult time in San Francisco and nearly starves until she encounters Ralph McKevitt, family friend, wealthy and handsome, whom her half-sister, Crystal, has decided to marry for luxury and comfort, rather than love. Ralph soon wins Daphne's affection, and she is exquisitely happy until Crystal appears. Crystal uses McKevitt as a "good thing," but spends much time with a debonnaire Bohemian, Avery Woodward, who promises to teach her much of life and love and art. Unhappy because Ralph obviously neglects her now, Daphne moons and dreams until she reduces her efficiency to a point where she loses her position. Ill with humility and fright, she sits in the park. Suddenly she discovers Ralph driving along in a smart roadster. She hails him. He seems enthusiastic over their meeting, and she feels reassured that he still cares for her. She tells him her troubles and he promises to find her a position.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XX.

"D O people ever die of happiness?" Daphne wondered. Every morning she went to work all tingling with excitement, quivering with importance, and sat at her nice new typewriter and typed letters on the heavy gray stationery of Greely, Sanderson and McMurtree. It was all so interesting and exciting. The library with law books stacked to the ceiling, and Barney, the office boy to climb up the ladder and get the books you wanted out of the top shelves. Old Mr. Greely closeted in his huge, dark paneled room with the fascinating old English hunting prints on the wall, having mysterious conferences with tall, pale Mr. Sanderson, who had a long, lean face like an undertaker, and with a ruddy, fat Mr. McMurtree. The people who came to the office were interesting too. Old ladies with high-boned collars supporting their aching necks, and diamonds, bright as locomotive headlights, blazing from their ears, their throats, their withered fingers. Rich young widows in expensive mourning. A constantly changing stream of men in easy fitting, well pressed business suits, offering each other black cigars. And just before the noon whistles blew there was Miss Yardley, Mr. Sanderson's secretary with her good-natured homely face in the door. "Have lunch with me, Miss Haines?" It was almost too perfect. Daphne tried to tell Ralph how grateful she was, and how much she loved it, but he couldn't believe that any girl as young and pretty as she could really enjoy working. "What are you giving us?" "But I mean it, Ralph!" "I'll have to look into this. You've got a sweetie there already!" She laughed out loud. "Why, they're all married except Mr. Greely!" "Doesn't Greely drive you crazy? I couldn't work with the old goat if he paid me a million a minute. Suspicious, prying, interfering, preaching old devil—" "He isn't! He doesn't talk that way about you, either. He says just wonderful things about you." Ralph looked at her quickly. "He talks about me to you?" Daphne blushed. "Oh, not much; but whenever he speaks of you, it's so nicely. And he's just wonderful to me. He says—" she stopped and laughed. "He says I've got brains."

"The hell he does!" He laughed, too, but he rumbled his blond hair thoughtfully. "He's a romantic old pirate in his way, but he's a bad egg, Daphne. I wouldn't fall for him too hard if I were you."

"Fall for him! Mr. Greely?" And she went off into another paroxysm of helpless, excited laughter. "It's because I've fallen for you so hard that I know how easy it is," he finished slowly, and kissed her.

So happy . . . so happy! The warm, sweet memories of the nights she did see him, kept her happy company on the nights that she didn't. He was working hard he told her, and forced to spend several profitless evenings entertaining a friend from out of town. She speculated about the friend for a while. Was it a man or a girl? She hated to ask, and it didn't matter particularly. Besides she had so much to think about. So many things to do. She brought fat, leather-bound books home from the law library, and read up on Mr. Greely's cases every night, yawning her head off, sipping a big cup of Mrs. Hinckle's strong coffee to keep her awake. Just before she slept she let herself think of Ralph.

Ralph would have liked to spend more evenings with Daphne. There was something cool and restful about her. He always left her curiously refreshed and content. She made him want to . . . well . . . do a little different. But each day brought its own grief . . . so many people to see. . . . Allan pestering him about details, old Mr. Greely prying . . . and Crystal Garroty.

Beside Crystal, Daphne faded to a thin, sweet memory, like a fragrance, or a bar of a well-loved song.

But Crystal . . . Crystal tore at his heart. She came often to see him at his office, tiptoeing in, tapping with a small gloved hand at his door.

"Ralph, dear, I know I shouldn't come. You're busy. Are you going to put me out?" She would come and put her lovely white hands on his shoulders, laughing her impudent, fizzing little laugh.

"The funniest thing happened in art school . . . wait till I tell you—" She'd have him laughing boisterously with her. And then when she was in the midst of a gale of laughter she'd break off suddenly, and throw herself despondently into a chair. "I'm not doing as well as I should, Ralph. I know I'm not. If I haven't any talent I don't want to live. I can't go on."

that's all. I couldn't go back now and face my stepfather . . . have him count the pennies it cost him, and have him say, 'I told you so!'"

Her visits were always disturbing and expensive. She left behind her a trail of "Quelques Fleurs," spilled powder, and flattened pockets.

"Is she holding me up?" he wondered sometimes. "Is she working me for a sucker?" "But of course she wasn't. 'It's just that it's so darn expensive living in the hotel. Wait till I move into the apartment. You'll come often, honey?' she begged. And he promised, his lips close to her honey-colored hair. "After all, I knew her long before I ever knew the kid," he told himself. "And she's not self-reliant like Daphne. She needs me, damn it. I can't turn her down."

"Ralph?" Daphne's voice came to him over the telephone wire, tremulous, and far away. It was the first time she had ever called him. "Ralph, Mr. Greely is going away for the week-end, over to his cottage at Bolinas, and . . . Ralph? Can you hear me all right?" "Sure, what am I supposed to do, go in mourning 'cause he's left?" "No, much better than that . . . Ralph . . . He came into my office today before he went away, and he said I was to telephone to you and tell you he'd like us to come for the day on Sunday, and his sister would be there—" "Oh Lord!" "What did you say, Ralph?" "Nothing." "Don't you want to go?" "Sure, I was just meditating on Sister Anne. She's—oh well—wait till you see her. What time does this Roman holiday begin?" "He said to come early—" "Let's see; that's day after tomorrow. I think I can make it. I'll be around for you about eight or half-past seven. The old man believes in the early bird. Call it half-past seven."

"I'll be ready . . ." And then in a little squeak, "Won't it be fun?" "Going with you will be fun, and the beach is nice. I could do without Greely and Sister Anne—well—I'll try to make it—" "Oh, Ralph; can't you be sure? He wants us to let him know. She couldn't keep the disappointment out of her voice. "All right. Tell him we'll be there," he said, laughing. "I'll do my darndest, and in case anything happens I'll send Allan with you instead."

"Allan? But Mr. Greely said you and I—" "Oh, he likes Allan. Allan Winters. I've told you about Allan, how we went to school together and he works for me? Good old Allan! He'd do anything for me. Greely thinks the world of him—" "But Ralph I'd—"

"You'd rather have me?" He laughed. "All right then, I'll be there!"

Daphne left the telephone and walked sedately to her room. But once behind the closed door she did a little dance to celebrate, hugging one of the old sofa pillows tight for a partner, and whirling until she was drunk with dizziness. Then she emptied her purse on the bed, to count her money.

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

TO escape the nagging of a stepmother and the selfishness of her stepsister, Daphne Haines, seventeen and beautiful, leaves home determined to make her own living. She has a difficult time in San Francisco and nearly starves until she encounters Ralph McKevitt, family friend, wealthy and handsome, whom her half-sister, Crystal, has decided to marry for luxury and comfort, rather than love. Ralph soon wins Daphne's affection, and she is exquisitely happy until Crystal appears. Crystal uses McKevitt as a "good thing," but spends much time with a debonaire Bohemian, Avery Woodward, who promises to teach her much of life and love and art. Unhappy because Ralph obviously neglects her now, Daphne moons and dreams until she reduces her efficiency to a point where she loses her position. Ill with humility and fright, she sits in the park. Suddenly she discovers Ralph driving along in a smart roadster. She hails him. He seems enthusiastic over their meeting, and she feels reassured that he still cares for her. She tells him her troubles and he promises to find her a position.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XX.

"D O people ever die of happiness?" Daphne wondered. Every morning she went to work all tingling with excitement, quivering with importance, and sat at her nice new typewriter and typed letters on the heavy gray stationery of Greely, Sanderson and McMurtrie. It was all so interesting and exciting. The library with law books stacked to the ceiling, and Barney, the office boy to climb up the ladder and get the books you wanted out of the top shelves. Old Mr. Greely closeted in his huge, dark paneled room with the fascinating old English hunting prints on the wall, having mysterious conferences with tall, pale Mr. Sanderson, who had a long, lean face like an undertaker, and with suddy, fat Mr. McMurtrie. The people who came to the office were interesting too. Old ladies with high-boned collars supporting their scrawny necks, and diamonds, bright as locomotive headlights, blazing from their ears, their throats, their withered fingers. Rich young widows in expensive mourning. A constantly changing stream of men in easy fitting, well pressed business suits, offering each other black cigars. And just before the noon whistles blew there was Miss Yardley, Mr. Sanderson's secretary with her good-natured homely face in the door. "Have lunch with me, Miss Haines?" It was almost too perfect. Daphne tried to tell Ralph how grateful she was, and how much she loved it, but he couldn't believe that any girl as young and pretty as she could really enjoy working, and listened to her with a puzzled, faintly cynical grin. "What are you giving us?" "But I mean it, Ralph!" "I'll have to look into this. You've got a sweetie there already!" She laughed out loud. "Why, they're all married except Mr. Greely!" "Doesn't Greely drive you crazy? I couldn't work with the old goat if he paid me a million a minute. Suspicious, prying, interfering, preaching old devil—" "He isn't! He doesn't talk that way about you, either. He says just wonderful things about you." Ralph looked at her quickly. "He talks about me to you?" Daphne blushed. "Oh, not much; but whenever he speaks of you, it's so nicely. And he's just wonderful to me. He says—" she stopped and laughed. "He says I've got brains."

Ralph would have liked to spend more evenings with Daphne. There was something cool and restful about her. He always left her curiously refreshed and content. She made him want to . . . well . . . do a little different. But each day brought its own grief . . . so many people to see. . . . Allan pestering him about details, old Mr. Greely prying . . . and Crystal Garroty.

Beside Crystal, Daphne faded to a thin, sweet memory, like a fragrance, or a bar of a well-loved song. But Crystal . . . Crystal tore at his heart. She came often to see him at his office, tiptoeing in, tapping with a small gloved hand at his door. "Ralph, dear, I know I shouldn't come. You're busy. Are you going to put me out?" She would come and put her lovely white hands on his shoulders, laughing her impudent, fizzling little laugh. "The funniest thing happened in art school . . . wait till I tell you." She'd have him laughing boisterously with her. And then when she was in the midst of a gale of laughter she'd break off suddenly, and throw herself despondently into a chair. "I'm not doing as well as I should, Ralph. I know I'm not. If I haven't any talent I don't want to live. I can't go on."

that's all. I couldn't go back now and face my stepfather . . . have him count the pennies it cost him, and have him say, 'I told you so!'" Her visits were always disturbing and expensive. She left behind her a trail of "Quelques Fleurs," spilled powder, and flattened pockets. "Is she holding me up?" he wondered sometimes. "Is she working me for a sucker?" But of course she wasn't. "It's just that it's so darn expensive living in the hotel. Wait till I move into the apartment. You'll come often, honey?" she begged. And he promised, his lips close to her honey-colored hair.

"After all, I knew her long before I ever knew the kid," he told himself. "And she's not self-reliant like Daphne. She needs me, damn it. I can't turn her down."

"Ralph?" Daphne's voice came to him over the telephone wire, tremulous, and far away. It was the first time she had ever called him. "Ralph, Mr. Greely is going away for the week-end, over to his cottage at Holinas, and . . . Ralph? Can you hear me all right?" "Sure, what am I supposed to do, go in mourning 'cause he's left?" "No, much better than that . . . Ralph . . . He came into my office today before he went away, and he said I was to telephone to you and tell you he'd like us to come for the day on Sunday, and his sister would be there—" "Oh Lord!"

"What did you say, Ralph?" "Nothing." "Don't you want to go?" "Sure, I was just meditating on Sister Anne. She's—oh well—wait till you see her. What time does this Roman holiday begin?" "He said to come early—" "Let's see; that's day after tomorrow. I think I can make it. I'll be around for you about eight or half-past seven. The old man believes in the early bird. Call it half-past seven." "I'll be ready . . . And then in a little squeak, "Won't it be fun?" "Going with you will be fun, and the beach is nice. I could do without Greely and Sister Anne—well—I'll try to make it—" "Oh, Ralph; can't you be sure? He wants us to let him know—" She couldn't keep the disappointment out of her voice.

"All right. Tell him we'll be there," he said, laughing. "I'll do my damndest, and in case anything happens I'll send Allan with you instead." "Allan? But Mr. Greely said you and I—" "Oh, he likes Allan. Allan Winters. I've told you about Allan, how we went to school together and he works for me? Good old Allan! He'd do anything for me. Greely thinks the world of him—" "But Ralph, I'd—" "You'd rather have me?" He laughed. "All right then, I'll be there!"

Daphne left the telephone and walked sedately to her room. But once behind the closed door she did a little dance to celebrate, hugging one of the old sofa pillows tight for a partner, and whirling until she was drunk with dizziness. Then she emptied her purse on the bed, to count her money.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

stepped from a train here today, on a warrant issued at the complaint of his wife in which she charged that he had taken $15,000 of her money.

"It isn't true," Fabian said, "she gave me the money and suggested that I come out here to Rochester for medical treatment."

The Fabians were married on April 15 and the husband started east alone last Saturday. He indicated that he would fight extradition.
